

This might need to be pushed just a wee bit

Would it be possible to shift the t to the left a tiny bit, and then extend the cross bar just a hair more to the right? The cross bar just terminates a little early for my liking. And it seems like it could benefit from some additional white space on the right side.

I love the swoop of the M, and wonder if the top of the B is too blunt? Maybe it can terminate just a little less perpendicular to its exiting angle?

The B in general feels narrow to me. And the proportions feel a bit too balanced (again, for my liking). Could it be come wider?

Mainly, I'd like to see the left side pulled more to the left, and then either have the top or bottom bowl become more dominant.

This might need to be pushed just a wee bit

I wish the tops of the ls felt more like the top of the t here. The slightly more rounded approach seems to fit well with all of the stroke endings.

Not sure if this is a rendering issue, but it seems like the left side of the ls are really flat zz then kink as they exit.