ONE TIME, ONE MEETING

The brilliant sunshine touched the tea fields – long rows of emerald green that looked like velvet caterpillars snuggled up, one after another. I had just arrived in Japan and a longtime dream was coming true. I was going to meet a tea plant for the first time. It was like having a friend you've known for 25 years but never had the opportunity to see where they grew up. And now that was happening with my dear old friend, Camellia sinensis. (Please turn to page 50.)

NOTEWORTHY...

Over a dozen new teas have been added to this issue of our newsletter. Included in our exciting new selections are green teas from Japan (showcased on page 53), first flush Darjeelings from India (pages 10-11), a Hwangcha offering from Korea (page 32), and a naturally flavored Extra Bergamot Earl Grey (page 41).

More 2019 teas will be arriving over the coming months! Second flush Darjeeling and Assam teas from India are expected by late summer/early fall. We will also be adding a new tea to our Colombian offerings. As always, new teas will be posted on our website, www.uptontea.com, as they arrive.

ORDER ONLINE, BY MAIL, FAX, PHONE OR E-MAIL

A fax can usually be sent for less than the price of a stamp! Orders are typically shipped the next business day. Refer to the order form on page 55 for details and hours of operation.

A Note to our Valued Customers:

In a recent survey, forty-one percent of our Valued Customers responded that they had first discovered Upton Tea Imports by word of mouth. This is a high percentage considering today's online world, however, the staff at Upton Tea Imports was not surprised. Over the course of our 30-year history, we have received hundreds of letters from our Valued Customers, each relating how a cup of Upton Tea Imports tea shared at a friend or family member's home became a turning point in their life.

As we announced in our summer Upton Tea Quarterly, a great way to celebrate our 30th Anniversary is to give our Valued Customers an opportunity to share their story why Upton Tea Imports is special to them. The winning article will be published in our winter Upton Tea Quarterly. All qualified entries will receive 300 Valued Customer points. Five finalists will receive 5,000 Valued Customer points. The author of the chosen article will receive 30,000 Valued Customer points. Please submit entries of 800-1,500 words in a Microsoft Word document to: article@uptontea.com. We have received some great articles so far and would like to give more Valued Customers the chance to submit an entry. Therefore, we have extended the deadline to September 15, 2019. Please see our website for the complete list of rules. We look forward to reading your articles!

Our Valued Customer Program was introduced in February and it has been well received. Along with receiving rewards points for every purchase, our Valued Customers can also earn points by referring Upton Tea Imports to a friend or by sharing us on social media. This is a great way to get rewarded for sharing Upton Tea Imports with your family and friends. Please see our website for information about how to earn referral points.

We hope that you are enjoying our 30th Anniversary celebration with us. Our first two Anniversary teas are very popular and we expect our next Anniversary tea to be a huge success, too. We are excited to announce our 3rd Anniversary tea – NT11: Naturally Flavored Extra Bergamot Earl Grey. A rich, inviting fragrance introduces this naturally flavored, premium black tea selection. Please turn to page 41 for the full description and pricing.

Gifts are always associated with Anniversaries. In honor of our 30th Anniversary, we have created an Upton Tea Imports magnet just for you. Included in all orders during the month of August, this free magnet displays steeping guidelines to assist with identifying the appropriate water temperature and steeping time for your tea. Thank you so much for your valued support of Upton Tea Imports.

PACKAGING OPTIONS

Please note that we can personalize the round tea label on your tea packet or tin with your name, or the name of your gift recipient, up to 25 characters. This personalization is free of charge and adds a wonderful personal touch to your tea. If no personalization is chosen, a default message: "Happy Tea Drinking!" is printed. Our teas are offered in sample quantities as well as a range of packet sizes. The smallest size packet is referred to as a single packet or standard packet. In most cases, we pack the standard packet with 125 grams (4.4 ounces). The gram weights in our price list are indicated in the columns to the right of the tea header as indicated below. The single packet size may also be available in a plug-top British style tea tin at $2.00 above the single packet price. Tins contain the same net weight as that listed in the column immediately to the left of the "In Tin" column. We also offer extra large (-H) packet sizes and jumbo (-K) packets in some cases. Please note that packets are heat-sealed to protect freshness. Single- and double-size packets are resealable with a convenient zip-lock closure.

WEIGHTS OF MOST TEAS

Large-leaf teas are packed in smaller quantities, depending on the boldness of the leaf. Thus, a standard packet may contain 100 grams or less (refer to the headers above the price). We package teas in multiples of 2, 4 and 8 times the standard packet size. The label on the front of the packet lists the actual net weight.

SAMPLE SIZE	STANDARD PACKET	SMALL TIN	DOUBLE PACKET	EXTRA LARGE	JUMBO BAG
SAMPLE	125g	In Tin	250g	500g	1Kg
NOTE*	4.41 oz	4.41 oz	8.82 oz	1.1 lbs	2.2 lbs

WEIGHTS OF BULKIER TEAS

Our teas are hand packed by us in a variety of sizes. Larger packet prices reflect the savings incurred by us in labor, as well as reduced margins for large quantity purchases. Savings will vary depending on the scarcity and cost of the tea. When ordering the largest size packets, we recommend dispensing a portion of the tea into a small canister, which can serve for daily use. Remember to roll the top of the larger bag tightly to remove excess air before sealing to minimize air exposure and maintain freshness. We suggest ordering only the amount of tea that will be consumed in 3-6 months.

*NOTE SAMPLES

At the request of many of our customers, we now offer most of our teas in sample-size quantities at a nominal price. The majority of our sample sizes start at $1.00 and go up as the value of the tea increases. Each item has the sample price in the left price column (with an "S" suffix for an item code). Sample weights are approximately 12% of a single packet weight. This sample pricing policy will allow you to try all of our teas at a reasonable price.

TEAS OF INDIA

DARJEELING DISTRICT

Teas from the Darjeeling district of northern India are prized for their delicate flavor and aroma. The liquor ranges in color from golden-yellow to rich amber. Steeping time and quantity of tea are a matter of taste. We recommend 3 minutes for most Darjeeling teas. Broken-leaf Darjeeling is usually best when steeped for a minute or less.

DARJEELING BLENDS

DARJEELING BOP BLEND

The best value in Darjeeling tea. Broken leaf Darjeeling is often overlooked, either because the price is so reasonable or because too much value is placed on a more stylish leaf. This flavorful BOP blend offers a great cup at a very attractive price.

ICED TEA SELECTIONS

Virtually any tea can be served iced for a refreshing beverage. Many of our customers enjoy iced tea the year round as an alternative to bottled beverages. An excellent way to steep iced tea is the traditional hot tea method, using twice the normal quantity of tea leaves. The steeped concentrate can then be poured over ice when ready to serve. Storing or steeping tea at room temperature for extended periods is not recommended.

Our Tea Buyer continually searches the world for premium teas that we are proud to offer to our customers. On occasion, we find teas that are so special that we have them shipped to us by the fastest method today – the airplane – so we can share them with our customers as soon as possible. This is very similar to the nineteenth century when tea merchants would ship their precious cargo by the swift tea clippers, ensuring the fastest arrival times. In honor of this great tradition, we are introducing a new line of the highest quality teas – The Great Tea Race Collection. This special collection is named in honor of The Great Tea Race of 1866, when five of the fastest tea clippers set sail from Foochow, China bound for London with their cargo holds filled with tea chests. Ninety-nine days and over 15,000 nautical miles later, the Taeping and the Ariel docked first in London, only twenty-eight minutes apart. We are excited to introduce this carefully curated selection to our valued customers.

TEAS OF CEYLON

Ceylon - or modern-day Sri Lanka - has one of the world's oldest tea empires. British tea planter, James Taylor, introduced the first tea plantation to Ceylon in 1867, where the teas thrived in the cool, humid climate. The tea-growing regions of Sri Lanka are clustered mostly among the mountains of the island's central region and its southern foothills. Like the great wine-growing regions of France, the tea country of Sri Lanka is divided into seven strictly defined districts, each of which is known for producing teas of a particular character. Each district presents a unique combination of climate and terrain that leaves its mark on the tea it produces.

A JOURNEY OF ENLIGHTENMENT: JAPAN

ICHI-GO ICHI-E

One time, one meeting

By Karen P.

The brilliant sunshine touched the tea fields – long rows of emerald green that looked like velvet caterpillars snuggled up, one after another. I had just arrived in Japan and a longtime dream was coming true. I was going to meet a tea plant for the first time. It was like having a friend you've known for 25 years but never had the opportunity to see where they grew up. And now that was happening with my dear old friend, Camellia sinensis.

Our journey began in Kagoshima City, which overlooks the magnificent Sakurajima volcano. Sakurajima translates to “cherry blossom island.” Averaging 1-2 eruptions per day, this active volcano regularly blows puffy ash clouds into the air surrounding its summit. Cleaning supplies may be found along the city streets to aid in cleanup when the ash reaches the city.

After breakfast on our first day, my colleague, Bev (our Production Manager), and I explored the hotel gardens and found a hidden stone staircase that led to a lush, green grotto nourished by a cool waterfall. It was a lovely sensory experience to begin the day. As we drove to a tea auction on that warm and humid day, I was amazed at how neat and clean the streets were, with not a speck of trash along the road. I was feeling at home already.

The Kagoshima tea auction facility had two floors. We climbed the stairs to a reception room where we were served iced tea from glass carafes of iced Ho-ji Cha, Sencha and a yuzu-flavored green tea. Yuzu is a slow-growing citrus fruit, fuzzy yellow in color, which originated in China and Tibet. It was introduced to Japan during the Tang dynasty and, with its tart, refreshing flavor, has become a common ingredient in Japanese cuisine. The room was filled with history – a simple 6-tatami traditional Japanese home, ancient ceramic tea bowls and an early tea processing machine. We viewed a short film on how green tea is deeply woven into Japanese culture, from growing and processing in over 20 prefectures to young children steeping tea in Kyusu-style teapots and serving it in small cups to classmates.

We walked downstairs to the auction floor. Six long rows of stainless steel tables held tray after tray of tea leaves in a wide range of green shades, from the new green of a willow tree in spring to the rich, velvety tones of a dark green forest. Some of the leaves from each tea tray were infused into a round cupping bowl. A stainless steel strainer, filled with wet leaves, rested to the side. All presented for inspection. I observed a Kukicha (twig tea) that looked like fine silky hair, a light spring-green color. As we moved along the rows, we were able to touch and smell the leaves, immersing our senses in their feel and aroma.

Later that morning at a tea processing facility, we watched as the raw tea leaves were processed into aracha, which translates to “unrefined tea.” The leaves are steamed, rolled and dried. They are then sold at auction to buyers who will refine them by firing, cutting, sorting and blending. Refined tea is called shiagecha. The majority of Japanese teas are refined and blended to achieve consistency in flavor. Tea masters apply their unique touch, transforming unrefined into refined.

The moment I had been anticipating finally arrived. We traveled along the undulating, forested roads into the country to a tea farm. As I stepped off the bus, I inhaled the fresh, sweet air that nourished hundreds of tea plants. We immediately dashed over to the plants to pluck some leaves and breathe in their marvelous green scent. As I held the leaves up to my nose, I was quickly overcome with strong feelings and the significance of this once-in-a-lifetime experience. It is difficult to describe fully. The Japanese saying, Ichi-go Ichi-e, which translates to “one time, one meeting/ encounter,” comes close with its philosophy on the preciousness of a single moment in time, one that will never occur again. This single moment was magical for me.

We entered the garden’s factory into what felt like a steamy sauna, where the tea leaves were being steamed to halt oxidation and retain their greenness. The leaves were then blown into these enormously tall, mesh cylinders where they appeared to dance like butterflies on the wind. They flew and swirled, detaching from one another as the drying process started. Next came the drying and rolling room. They process Tencha (pre-Matcha) and Sencha here. Tencha is steamed and dried as well as being de-stemmed and de-veined to prepare it for grinding in the stone mills. In addition to steaming and drying, Sencha is also rolled to give the leaves their distinctive needle shape. The air was infused with the fragrance of fresh, raw tea leaves - a heady scent.

After leaving the factory, my heart beat with excitement as we walked along the dirt road to the field. Upon reaching the field, I was immediately struck by how large and glossy the leaves were. Row upon row of tea bushes nourished by the pure mountain air surrounding the tea garden and factory.

A garden worker drove a shiny red machine that glided over the rows. It was harvesting the new growth and depositing the leaves into a large mesh container in back. I had the opportunity to climb aboard the tea harvesting machine when it came to rest. As I perched up in the seat, I looked out over the sea of green and thought, “this is where it all begins.”

The following day, we departed Kagoshima for Kyoto by way of the sleek shinkansen high-speed train, known in English as the bullet train. It reaches speeds of up to 200 MPH, and in its 55-year history, it has not had a single passenger injury. We arrived in Kyoto and were greeted by the sight of the tallest structure in the city, the Kyoto Tower. Its spire reaches a height of 430 feet. After dark, the tower glowed in cool tones of blue, purple and pink.

On our first day in Kyoto, we visited the Arashiyama Bamboo Grove, a magnificent forest of soaring bamboo, complete with walking paths. The bamboo stalks emitted a soft susurrant as they swayed gently in the early evening breeze. As I walked along the worn path and listened to this lulling sound, I felt an otherworldly serenity descend over me. The next day, we traveled along winding mountain roads that overlooked tea fields tucked into nooks and crannies on craggy hillsides. A river caught the sunlight as it meandered along the road we followed. We arrived in Wazuka, an area that has an 800-year tea growing history and is home to hundreds of farms. It is believed that tea was originally brought to this area by Zen Buddhist monks for medicinal use at their temple.

Upon our arrival at the tea farm, I felt a light brush on my hand. When I looked down, I discovered a new friend – a ladybug had landed on my left hand. A universal symbol of good luck, I felt she had come in greeting and was wishing us well on our visit. Out in the tea fields, we saw whole sections that had been shaded with what looked like dark silver tarp. The tea rows are shaded for 2-4 weeks before harvest to block sunlight exposure and boost theanine levels in the leaves. An amino acid found in the tea leaf, theanine (L-theanine), gives green tea its unique umami flavor. By shading the leaves, this savory, brothy flavor is encouraged to develop. Once the shading is removed, it is vital to harvest the leaves immediately as the bushes will flush with new growth within 2-3 hours.

The average lifespan of a tea plant in Japan is approximately 40 years. Once they reach that venerable age, they are replaced with new plants, preferably from cuttings, as a cutting is a clone of a mother plant having desirable characteristics. Growing tea plants from seed produces less predictable results. Leaves are harvested in the spring, summer and autumn, with the spring harvest producing the highest-quality tea. After the winter dormancy period, the accumulated nutrients nourish the new spring growth. The very first Sencha harvest is called Shincha, which translates to “new tea.” Harvesting is accomplished by one of three methods: handpicking, handheld shearing machine, or the large shearing machine driven by a garden worker. In areas where the fields are too steep for the large machine, mechanical hand shears are held by two workers, one on either side, and guided along each row.

Our final stop in Wazuka was at a Matcha factory where we observed freshly harvested leaves being steamed, blown, dried and sorted before the final step – grinding by the stone mills. Over 100 mills spun around in concert as they ground the Tencha leaves into Matcha powder. It takes one hour for one mill to produce 30 grams of Matcha. Later that day, we were honored to take part in a traditional Japanese Tea Ceremony, Cha-no-yu. Also called The Way of Tea, it has a long cultural heritage as the ceremonial preparation and presentation of Matcha. Some of my memories of this Ichigo Ichi-e experience recall the graceful movements of the women in their kimonos, the peaceful energy of the room, the beauty of the tea bowls and the clean umami flavor of the tea.

The days that followed were filled with visits to the beautiful shrines and temples in the Kyoto area, most notably, Kinkaku-ji, the Golden Pavilion, a gold-leafed temple that rises above a reflecting pond dotted with small islands and edged with colorful patches of deep purple iris in full bloom. A magnificent golden phoenix caps the building, which is surrounded by beautiful gardens and walking paths. We enjoyed delicious Japanese cuisine throughout our visit. By week’s end, my body felt clean and refreshed from all of the healthy eating. We wrapped up the week in Tokyo, visiting the Skytree broadcasting and observation tower. At over 2,000 feet tall, it is the world’s second tallest structure. I overcame my fears and ascended to what felt like the top of the world.

As our plane rose above the clouds and I said goodbye to Japan, I thought about all of the amazing experiences I had. I thought about how very kind the people in Japan are and how welcome I felt during my stay there. I felt my tea journey had come full circle and was clicking into place. I had the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see “where it all begins.” Now, when I enjoy a cup of Japanese tea, it brings me back to that magical place where my old friend grows under the Japanese sky. I have gained a whole new perspective and appreciation for these very special teas. I encourage everyone to have fun exploring our full range of high-quality Japanese teas and our 2 exciting new offerings from Kagoshima (next page) - TJ94: Ho-ji Kuki Gen-mai Cha Blend Organic and TJ04: Saemidori Sencha Organic (next page).

wonderful adventure with you!
